Price: USD 21.00 2 Likes el día de ayer he instalado vital 1.5.5 y funciona la primera vez que lo abrí, pero el día de hoy ya no abre, solo se pone en negro la ventana y después se cierra, tanto como independiente como dentro de fl studio, ya intenté desinstalar y volver a instalar y no funciona, he probado con la versión 1.0.7 y se abre pero los presets que uso no son para esa versión, alguien sabe como resolver el problema? Graphics - switched from OpenGL to DirectX11 on Windows Graphics - switched from OpenGL to Metal on MacOS Make sure your graphic drivers are up to date and that DirectX11 is up to date, tengo el mismo problema, se cierra apenas intento abrirlo y si lo abro en ableton me cierra todo, la cosa es que tengo DirectX12 esta todo actualizado, alguna ayuda??? 1 Like Did you install the vs3(vs3) or the vs2 (.dll). Tengo el mismo problema, como lo solucionaste? Hi there, I recently noticed that the preset browser in VITAL (version 1.5.5) does not display all the presets (folders) that I have installed in "c:\Usersame\Documents\Vital". I then restarted VITAL several times because I thought VITAL would recreate the preset database at some point. But it didn't work. Then I renamed the "available_packs.json" because I hoped that VITAL would then re-index the folders and then all installed presets would also be displayed in VITAL. Unfortunately, VITAL doesn't stop the download and seems to endlessly try to download the factory presets(?) (see picture). There have been similar posts here in the forum, but none of them really had a solution. Can anyone help me? Thanks a lot! Hm, now I cancelled the download after 4 hrs and opened a project in my DAW and now VITAL is fixed. No glue what solved it... Hi all, I've added the February patch collection to Gumroad (FREE!) Feb 2025 Vital Patch Collection Enjoy (hopefully) GM 3 Likes Thank you so much! These are perfect! 1 Like A new Synthwave preset pack of 125 Vital presets is now available on my website! Pack: Synth Presets Plus Demo: 2 Likes Found this today on Reddit : This is the comment of the creator : For the past few years I've been downloading Vital presets made by content creators all across the Internet. I decided to put them together in a nice package for you guys. This is a collection of FREE packs. If there are any that you particularly like look up the creator they probably have stuff for sale. You can get the file here. It's been compressed with 7-Zip to keep the download as small as possible. Enjoy!" 1 Like Any update from Matt that anyone knows about? Vital has become my go to for pretty much everything, but I would love to see a feature based update! (And I'm sure everyone here would too) 1 Like I would like too but this situation is so strange, I mean, why not let people know about an update or how things really are? 1 Like I'd recommend checking discord for any updates Keep in mind it's just a single dev, so he's probably busy with life and his other jobs lol 1 Like with serum2 going 3x osc id love to see vital go 4x osc. Serum 2 has 3 oscs, a sub osc and a noise osc so kinda 5 osc. Also the oscs work as samplers so there's a lot to catch in that regard. Maybe soon? the serum 2 "pressure"? idk... Kind of sad hes basically ghosting his whole community in a way. Saw him online in discord a minute ago so he's alive, so that's good haha but other than that a "hey, all good, this is happening," every 6 months would've been nice. The last official announcement on anything was v1.5, so almost 3 years ago with his one "im fine still working" message in the middle fff, has anyone seen the number of bugs 1.5 brought? I don't use it and didn't go pro because it crashed a bunch or had a ton of gui bugs. Reaper DAW is developed by just 2 people and they've been accessible in the dev section of the forum basically every weekday for the past what, 10 years? So the "it's one person" thing either is so true it's just dumb at this point to not hire someone else to AT LEAST monitor and keep this forum updated on what is happening or he just meh's his way through it because he trusts his product, which okay i guess but do you really not see the abandonment tag is slowly creeping? Coming out of the blue like "hey here's v2 after 3 or more years of ghosting" feels bittersweet. I hope it's because he just went all in on v2 or whatever was after 1.5 -considering the new graphics engine or whatever- but now it's a huge task at his hands which feels like a david vs goliath thing. But still, don't keep your people in the dark like this, if you don't want to give a deadline it's fine too. Slow progress is also progress. So... maybe soon? or just maybe don't hold your breath either. If anything I wish I could use vital more but the lack of support and updates gives me irk. 2 Likes Nah don't hold your breath. I bet we have fusion power before Vital update. Just use and accept it as it is. 1 Like Vital newbie here! How long has it been since the last update? Is there any support? Any announcements? Or is the plugin currently "as is"? We don't really need to wait for new versions? I'm only asking because I was just about to switch from V-Station to Vital. But I want to avoid having a plugin that is no longer maintained, where activation no longer works because the servers are down, etc. Unfortunately, Vital seems to depend a lot on the online login 1 Like I wish I knew when the next update would hit but even as a mod I don't know. All that I know is that Vital is still in development and that the next update will bring some library updates such as CLAP 1 Like Treat it "as is" Although I've used vital for years now and never really had majors issues (ofc odd bugs, etc) I still make sure to go back into projects and bounce the samples or stems out, etc. The only synths I don't do this with are daw defaults, I bounce my phaseplant and other plugins like arturia too eventually - but depends on your workflow and all that 2 Likes But there's no kind of "roadmap" or anything like that, is there? You don't even know if Matt reads through the feature requests here and prioritizes them in any way. It would be cool if the community could somehow vote on which features should be included in the next versions, etc. That definitely would be cool, but much more common in larger projects. Similar to how the forums work for Engine DJ or Mxx software 1 Like Of course, it also depends on what Matt considers "important" (personally) and what he thinks is important for the community. Some people are literally crying out for (even) more modulation options, others want a (free) alternative to Serum with exactly the same features, etc. As a Vital newbie, I would rather be happy about more "stunning" soundbanks. Or at least ONE really cool soundbank that completely convinces everyone: "Wow, I have to have this synth and this bank!" You can find thousands of Vital presets on the net, but most of them are dubstep, psytrance, simple 80s synths or all kinds of experimental (unsusable) stuff with a lot of Mod, LFO and FX... or the preset collapses completely when Osc 4 (Sample) is switched off. If you want modern sounds that are currently being played on the radio, in clubs or at festivals, then you have to create the presets yourself. All in all, however, a fast workflow is more important to me, which is why my feature requests here are mainly UX-based. I would be happy with Osc Solo Button, Osc Destination → Filter (without FX) and a simple Arp (Up/Down/Up+Down) for the next update. "Luckily" Serum 2 just came out and Matt can take over some of that are there people here who would be interested in forking and developing Vital from the source code? I'm a total noob at this, but if there's one synth I would invest the time and energy into keeping up to date, it would be this one for sure. 1 Like If you're interested in diving deeper inside Vital definitely check out the discord and the Vitalium project 3 Likes Unfortunately, only the original version is available on GitHub for modification, not the latest version 1.5.5 with all the updates/bugfixes. Otherwise, a few Vital fans could have simply developed it further as a group... Apparently Matt is already working on the next synthesizer and some graphic stuff, for him Vital has probably been "finished" for a long time and there's just nothing more to come. He could save all the fans a lot of grief if he would just say something about it, but of course not just with a two-liner. But Vital is gradually disappearing into oblivion, there are only pessimistic comments in all the forums and people are switching to other synths where new updates/bugfixes are regularly released. Who buys the synth now if the author has been silent for years and offers no support at all? It's really a sad story overall 3 Likes Its as cool as ! Maybe a bug update - my is rock solid - it has loads to learn, i have had a few vst synths over the years alot have not been update or do a very bad vst 3 update . I cannot use them in Cubase as they totally crash the daw - shame. This is pleasure to use and inspiring . Only one thing as i have paid for it uploads the basic pre-sets cannot get delete them as they re install , low work flow It's rather unclear whether Matt is working on a new synthesizer or not, he's currently developing a new rendering system for plugins which he called visage. Although he does have plans for a new plugin, it's unknown whether it's a synthesizer or an effects processor. It seems as if Matt jumps from project to project. In his eyes, Vital has apparently been "fully completed" since version 1.5.5 and he sees no reason to fix all the bugs or even add new features. It's always the same: first a huge hype about his new plugin, then a few updates, then he loses motivation and moves on to the next project. Vital was able to rest on its laurels for a long time, but now Serum 2 is on the market and has caught up with and even surpassed all the disadvantages. And now, of course, users are asking themselves the question: should they continue to rely on a presumably dead Vital, or switch to Serum 2, where there are regular updates and bugs/support are simply dealt with more professionally. Matt has finished with Vital and doesn't really want to hear any more about it. It really is a very sad story of a great synthesizer next page -
