The academy traces its roots to various "home-schools" which began in western and central New York in 1901. USA is situated on a hill overlooking Cayuga Lake, the largest of the Finger Lakes. The present school campus was formerly a Quaker boarding school known as Oakwood Seminary. Over the years the campus has grown to include buildings for administration and classrooms, dormitories, church, faculty housing, farm, orchard and athletic facilities. For over nine decades Union Springs Academy has provided quality Christian education to young people from New York, New England, Canada and abroad. It is part of USA's purpose to educate students for a lifetime. The unique and vibrant beliefs of the Seventh-day Adventist Church are present throughout the campus in class instruction, work duties, behavioral standards and dormitory life. Daily worship services and Bible instruction enhance the lives of faculty and students alike. Union Springs Academy offers three diplomas and a certificate of attendance. The General Diploma meets the class credit requirements for graduation as outlined by the NY State Department of Education and the Atlantic Union Conference Office of Education. The College Preparatory Diploma requires 7 credits in laboratory sciences and analytical mathematics, and three credits of a foreign language. The College Preparatory Diploma or the Honors Diploma provides the best preparation for SAT and ACT tests and for college admissions. Candidates for the Honors Diploma must meet requirements for the College Preparatory Diploma as well as what is listed under "Honors Diploma". The program continues to attract students from all ethnic, racial, and cultural backgrounds as they recognize ways that Africana Studies provides them with a forum to examine the intellectual life, the historical experience, and the cultural understanding of one of this country's largest racial minority groups. The Department of English, under the Faculty of Arts & Social Sciences (FA), started its journey with two predominant visions: first, to enhance and nourish students' mental, ethical, and creative facets of their personality; secondly, to prepare themselves for efficient professional and technical employment in future. There can be no denying that ethics, values, morality and creativity are the essential ingredients of nation-building. As a pioneering private university of this country, Unixp has always been committed to imparting these ingredients among its students as the larger concerns of society. The Department of English firmly believes that value-education can bring excellence in leadership, and consequently excellence in nation-building.
