Antelias, Lebanon Beirut has long been touted as one of the world's best nightlife hotspots, with its incredible mixology, delicious food and the Lebanese gift for life creating the perfect cocktail for a night out. Beirut's nightlife is eclectic, from laid-back hole-in-the-wall bars to secret speakeasies or award-winning nightclubs. Wine-lovers can enjoy sunset drinks, sampling local vintages that bottle centuries of wine-making history. Expertly crafted cocktails, often experimenting with seasonal flavours, can be found even in the smallest of bars, and come evening, there's no better place than a rooftop club overlooking the coastline. Whatever the mood, or the day of the week, Beirut has nightlife covered. Courtesy Clubroom Clubroom Clubroom This recently opened speakeasy is a glamorous new secret of Beirut's nightlife. Hidden away in an unassuming building on Pasture Street, Clubroom is an Art Deco-inspired den, with mirror-covered and green velvet interiors designed by Carl Gerges. Open Thursday to Saturday, the early evening is a calmer affair, perfect for catching up over a few drinks, with the music steadily ramping up as the night goes on. The cocktails are perfectly balanced, with a few unexpected drinks on the menu, as well as some inventive signatures, inspired by the iconic Prohibition-era martini. On the food side, the menu draws from Mediterranean and Asian influences and is designed for sharing, allowing the table to connect over dishes that pair seamlessly with the cocktails. Fan favourites include the carabinero gyoza, torched wagyu and mousse anglaise. The Malt Gallery Experience Courtesy The Malt Gallery Experience Courtesy The Malt Gallery Experience in Saifi is a must-visit for all wine and spirit enthusiasts, carrying an incredible
 'liquid library' - featuring more than 3,000 varieties of whiskey, rum, cognac, gin, wine and much more. Whether you are a seasoned spirit-lover or just dipping your toes into the world of specialist drinks, the creative cocktails and rare spirits - available by the bottle or the glass - can match any taste, or budget. The monthly wine selection and flight of three food-paired whiskies ensures that there is always something new to discover. The food menu is full of fresh and flavourful Mediterranean-Nikkei fusion dishes, such as the vitello tonnato, an inventive take on surf 'n' turf made with roasted veal, raw tuna and artichokes, or the zingy fresh crab salad. If you lean more towards cocktails, the signature menu offers creative concoctions like the sweet-sour tequila, lime and coconut poco coco, or the refreshing grainy day, made from Nikka Coffey grain, IPA reduction soda and Barrel's immersive experience brings food and drink together varying in size and musical direction, letting clubbers pick and choose their vibe, with a different schedule each night: "Milkshake" on Wednesdays, for example, is for Afro house and house remix enthusiasts, while "Love Night" on Thursdays features a tribute to disco; "Glow" on Fridays has live performances by singers and dancers serving up pop hits; and, "2nd Sun" is an electronic music haven featuring a variety of the world and the region's best acts. It's a place to party until the sun comes up. Union Marks, Beirut This hidden gem of a bar is one of the most interesting places to go for a drink in Beirut, located in the bustling Armenian district of Bourj Hammoud. Nestled in the garden of a semi-derelict 1940s former cotton factory, this spot is a place to disconnect from the day-to-day and take in a little history at the same time. Old factory machinery has been used as unconventional décor and the ivy-covered buildings still look as unkempt as they did when it was abandoned in 1998. As an homage to its origins, the bar's signature cocktails are all named after fabrics, such as Felt, Velvet, Cotton, Cashmere and Silk. Linen, for example, weaves together rose lemonade with a gin and rosemary infusion, and soda. Alongside burgers, tacos and salads, there are also a few Armenian dishes such as traditional manti dumplings served, great any time of day. Guides Can't find a new place to tickle your fancy? Here are 23!
