[close] Albus Percival Wulfric Brian Dumbledore is the headmaster of Hogwarts for the first six books of the Harry Potter series, though he is killed at the end of the sixth. He knew Voldemort as Tom Riddle when Riddle was a student at Hogwarts, and calls him Tom to his face. When Dumbledore's little sister Ariana was six she was attacked by muggle boys who had seen her practicing her unmastered magical abilities. In response, Dumbledore's father attacked the boys and was sent to Azkaban for life, and the family never revealed what the boys had done to Ariana for fear of her being taken to a mental facility. Dumbledore also had a younger brother Aberforth, who ended up as barkeep of the Hog's Head. Ariana died in the midst of a three-way battle between her brothers and a friend of Albus's, Grindelwald. Grindelwald and Albus had planned to find the Deathly Hallows, overthrow the wizard secrecy and rule over muggle society. Grindelwald later attempted this, after Albus had abandoned the plans, but was defeated by Albus in a duel, where Albus secretly acquired the Elder Wand (one of the Deathly Hallows).Dumbledore mentors Harry Potter after the latter's godfather, Sirius Black, died, and revealed to him the secret of Voldemort's supposed immortality, actually the multiple Horcruxes created over the years. Dumbledore is killed by Snape, as agreed to in a scene shown in the seventh book. Bloomsbury is the British publication that has created both adult and children's covers. The adult edition usually depicts an object or place that plays a key part in the plot while the children's one features a major event in the book. Bloomsbury have commissioned many illustrators to design the cover. Artists commissioned by Bloomsbury to create full set of covers include Clare Melinsky, Andrew Davidson and Jonny Duddle. The original covers by American publisher Scholastic usually depict an amalgam of objects and people from the book against a common backdrop. The art on all original American editions were created by Mary GrandPré. Since then, Scholastic has commissioned Kazu Kibuishi and Brian Selznick to create new cover art for anniversary editions of all of the titles. The cover art created by either Bloomsbury or Scholastic are re-used on many, but not all, international editions of the books. Editions in English[1] British[1] Back covers of the original children's edition Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone The cover of the children's edition, drawn by Thomas Taylor, depicts Harry Potter staring at the Hogwarts Express at Platform 9 3/4. The original Bloomsbury back cover includes a rather bizarre-looking figure (whose face also adorns the spine) who was created by the illustrator. After a few editions, the back cover was changed with a new image, this time clearly identifiable as Dumbledore, even holding a Put-Outer. The figure on the back of the first Bloomsbury Children's Edition,Revised back of Children's Edition, Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets The cover of the children's edition, by Cliff Wright, has Harry and Ron Weasley lying the Flying Ford Anglia. The Hogwarts Express runs below them. The back cover depicts Hogwarts. A cutout of the cover image of Hedwig in her cage adorns the spine. Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban The cover of the children's edition, by Cliff Wright, depicts Harry and Hermione Granger riding Buckbeak. A lupine creature (either Sirius Black's Animagus or Remus Lupin in werewolf form) adorns the back cover and spine. Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire The cover of the children's edition, by Giles Greenfield, depicts the First Task of the Triwizard Championship, with Harry on his Firebolt being chased by a Hungarian Horntail. The back cover is an image of a Hogwarts staircase, with a ghost atop it. A cutout of an owl statue in the back is on the spine. Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix The cover of the children's edition, by Jason Cockcroft, features a phoenix rising from flames.The battle in the Atrium of the Ministry of Magic appears on the back cover, with the symbol-filled ceiling and the gold statues of the Fountain of Magical Brethren. A golden feather decorates the spine. Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince The cover of the children's edition, by Jason Cockcroft, depicts Albus Dumbledore and Harry inside the Cave, surrounded by a ring of fire created by the former. The back cover is the Cave, with the lake and the basin filled with potion. The spine has Marvolo Gaunt's Ring. Both flaps feature Severus Snape and Narcissa Malfoy's hands making the Unbreakable Vow. Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows The cover of the children's edition, by Jason Cockcroft, depicts Harry, Ron and Hermione breaking into the Lestrange Vault in Gringotts. A sword-wielding Griphook stands behind Harry.The back cover features Hogwarts, the front flap has Harry's deer Patronus, the back flap has Nagini inside a crystal ball, and the spine, the Deathly Hallows symbol. Harry Potter is on every cover. 2014 Children's Edition Hardcover Boxed Set (Books 1-7) Paperback Boxed Set (Books 1-7) Back cover art Hogwarts House Edition[1] In February 2017, in celebrating 20 years of Harry Potter, Bloomsbury released four new special covers each in both paperback and hardback; created by Levi Pinfold, the covers represent each of the Hogwarts Houses.[8] The following are the hardback sets. Notes and references American[1] Unlike the initial UK children's edition that went through various cover artists, the American books stuck with one artist per significant edition, with Mary GrandPré being the main artist since the launch of the Sorcerer's Stone, until the publications of the 15th and 20th anniversary editions with new cover arts respectively by Kazu Kibuishi and Brian Selznick, though both editions have the same interior art by GrandPré. Covers by Mary GrandPré[1] The original set Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone The cover shows a Nimbus-riding Harry (in Muggle attire) and weaving through Hogwart's arches) is about to enter the Golden Snitch, with other Quidditch players in the far distant background. Hogwarts castle appears behind Harry and the arched columns through which he is flying, the bottom of the entire cover shows a soft, red and blue tile floor, which is connected to the columns. The soft floor features a transparent fabric so we are able to see the bottom of the columns, and Fluffy's three vicious heads are visible in an opening in the castle wall. In the distance, the forest's pointed pine trees mirror the pointed towers of the castle, while a unicorn gallops by. The back cover shows a letter-carried owl, Albus Dumbledore, and a key, which is dropped by an owl. The back flap shows an orange curtain with white stars is blown by the owl. The front flap has a mysterious candle-holding figure with no shoes or boots is coming from behind a light-green curtain with light-blue swirls and dots. Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets The cover shows Fawkes flying Harry, Ron, and Ginny Weasley to safety after the defeat of Riddle in the Chamber of Secrets. Mrs Norris is in the back cover, and the front flap has the Basilisk's lurking eye. The title (besides "Harry Potter") is written in blood on the walls like Ginny's messages while possessed. Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban The cover shows Harry and Hermione riding Buckbeak. It could be said that all four Marauders appear - Sirius Black is probably the silhouette toward the bottom of the front cover, Peter Pettigrew's rat form is in the front flap, Remus Lupin in Werewolf form runs in the back cover, and Harry's stag Patronus (which resembles James Potter's Animagus) is in the back flap. On the back, we see four Dementors prowling around the castle and the Whomping Willow in the distance. Crookshanks is waiting under the tree. On the back flap appears a small house with smoke rising from its chimney—probably Hagrid's hut. Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire The entire art depicts the Third Task's maze, along with the Horntail (whose head and wings are on the back cover). The front cover features all Triwizard Champions - Harry Potter holding the Golden egg, Fleur Delacour, Viktor Krum, and Cedric Diggory. An acromantula (partly obscured by Fleur's hair ribbon), Sirius' dog form, distant stands full of spectators projecting above the maze and what looks like a Dementor are also visible. In the back cover, a pair of red eyes, the Beaupre's head, and holding the Goblet of Fire are visible. Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix The cover depicts Harry in the circular room at the entrance to the Department of Mysteries. The back cover has Lupin, Tonks, and Moody opening one of the doors. Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince The picture has Harry and Dumbledore in front of the potion-filled basin of the Cave. Ron, Hermione, Ginny and other DA members are in the back cover with the Dark Mark in the sky. Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows The cover depicts the Duel in the Great Hall, with Voldemort on the back flap and cover and Harry in the front cover. Back of the boxed set 20th Anniversary Edition[1] In 2018, Scholastic commissioned Brian Selznick to create new cover artwork for 20th anniversary editions of all of the titles.[1] Selznick knew "right away" that he wanted the covers to be connected so they could tell a single image when put together, focusing on the key themes of good and evil. He created a single image which could be divided into seven distinct covers. Each section portrays a different scene. Every book has a piece of Nagini's body with her head appearing on the cover of Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows.[2] Editions with unster covers[1] Illustrated Edition (2015–present)[1] Jim Kay was selected to present the books in a new format, the illustrated Edition, which he illustrated for both the interior and cover art. For Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix, Neil Packer was brought in as a guest collaborator to help complete the title. The above American edition represents all Illustrated Editions; to compare text placement and minor design differences between editions from different languages, see respective section on Illustrated Edition in individual book articles: Philosopher's Stone, Chamber of Secrets, Prisoner of Azkaban, Goblet of Fire, and Order of the Phoenix. Pottermore digital edition[1] [2015] On 11 December, 2015, Pottermore revealed new cover art by Oly Moss for eBooks.[3] This set of art is used on editions in languages available to be purchased on Pottermore, including Arabic, Czech, Danish, Dutch, English (both British and American), Finnish, French, German, Greek, Hungarian, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese, Norwegian, Polish, European Portuguese, Spanish, and Swedish. On 23 November, 2017, Oly Moss was given permission to share what he initially submitted for this commission.[4][5] being a total of five proposals, with the "Optical Illusions" pitch being selected. "Hogwarts", one out of the remaining four ideas, was later used for the 2016 German Exclusive Audio Book edition. The above British edition represents editions in all languages with this set of cover art.
